Silver has long been known for its antibacterial and antimicrobial properties. It's been used historically to keep drinking water and other liquids fresh and free from contamination. And it's been traditionally used for skin treatment and wound care and cleaning. Silver has been used around the globe by numerous cultures and civilizations across centuries.

SiselSilver works naturally by adding additional defense to support the body's immune system and providing powerful protection for general health and wellbeing. Supported by independent studies, SiselSilver utilizes a proven, new technology that magnifies the power and efficacy of silver. This unique and effective micronized colloidal silver core is surrounded by an Ag_4O_4 Tetrasilver tetraoxide molecular coating. This technology promotes continuous particle function to maximize bioavailability and potency.

Unlike traditional colloidal silver, our micronized colloidal SiselSilver with its Ag_4O_4 coating includes millions of silver oxide molecules attached to a central silver particle. These millions of molecules can ensure our superior silver functionality is reproduced time and time again to maximize the benefits people are looking for when using silver.*
